RESIDENTIAL RENTAL AGREEMENT — PROPERTY A

Fictional sample agreement | Cedar Residency, Flat A-204

1. Parties and purpose

This illustrative agreement is between a fictional owner, Ms. Ananya Rao (called the “Owner”), and a fictional tenant, Mr. Kiran Mehta (called the “Tenant”). It is a training sample designed to test document extraction and must not be signed or treated as a valid legal instrument.

The parties are assumed to agree to the temporary residential use of Flat A-204, Cedar Residency, Hyderabad, Telangana. The Tenant may use the premises as a private residence and may not use it for unlawful activity or a commercial operation that violates applicable rules.

The actual identities, authority to rent, ownership or management rights, and property details must be verified before any real agreement is prepared.

2. Term and possession

The sample lease term is eleven (11) months, commencing on 1 January 2026 and ending on 30 November 2026, unless ended earlier under the agreement or applicable law. Possession is assumed to be delivered after the agreed deposit and initial rent are received.

Any extension or renewal should be recorded in writing and signed by the parties. The Tenant should return keys, access cards, and other supplied items at the end of the tenancy, subject to a mutually documented handover.

3. Rent and payment

The illustrative monthly rent is ■25,000, payable in advance on or before the fifth day of each calendar month by bank transfer or another mutually recorded method. The parties should retain payment receipts.

If payment is delayed, the parties should communicate promptly and follow applicable law and any properly agreed written terms. No penalty or interest amount is specified in this sample; users should not infer one.

4. Security deposit

The illustrative refundable security deposit is ■1,00,000. It is intended to secure unpaid rent, documented damage beyond ordinary wear and tear, or other lawful and agreed deductions. It is not automatically a substitute for the final month's rent.

At move-out, the parties should inspect the premises together and prepare a written statement of any proposed deductions with supporting records. The remaining deposit should be returned within a reasonable period agreed by the parties and subject to applicable law. This sample does not establish a binding refund deadline.

5. Maintenance and repairs

The illustrative monthly building maintenance charge is ■3,000. In this sample, the Tenant pays this charge in addition to monthly rent. The parties should verify whether charges are fixed, variable, billed by the association, or already included in rent.

The Tenant is expected to keep the premises reasonably clean, promptly report leaks or electrical faults, and avoid damage caused by negligence. The Owner is assumed to arrange major structural repairs and repairs to essential systems that are not caused by the Tenant, subject to applicable law and the actual agreement.

Responsibility for minor repairs, appliance servicing, pest control, plumbing blockages, and damage caused by guests should be expressly clarified in a real agreement rather than assumed from this sample.

6. Utilities and other charges

The Tenant is responsible in this illustrative example for electricity consumed within the unit and personal internet or television subscriptions. Water charges, common-area electricity, waste collection, and other association charges should be confirmed against the actual bill and association rules.

Both parties should record opening meter readings and any unpaid utility amounts on the possession date. The Tenant should not make structural changes or install heavy equipment without required written permission.

7. Use, visitors, and restrictions

The premises are intended for residential occupation by the Tenant and the occupants disclosed to the Owner. The Tenant should comply with reasonable building rules regarding noise, waste disposal, parking, access, and shared spaces.

Subletting, assignment, short-term paid guest stays, or material alterations require prior written permission where required by the agreement and applicable law. The parties should not interpret this clause as overriding statutory rights.

8. Entry and privacy

The Owner or an authorized representative may request access for repairs, inspection, or showing the premises to prospective tenants, with reasonable advance notice and at a mutually suitable time, except in a genuine emergency or as permitted by law.

Personal belongings and private information should be respected. The parties should document any inspection, repair request, or handover in writing to reduce disputes.

Important notice: THIS IS A FICTIONAL TRAINING SAMPLE, NOT LEGAL ADVICE OR A READY-TO-SIGN AGREEMENT. Have a qualified local professional review any real rental agreement.

9. Notice and termination

The illustrative notice period is two (2) months for either party, subject to applicable law and the full terms of a real signed agreement. A notice should identify the intended termination date and be delivered in a way that can be documented.

Serious breach, non-payment, or other termination grounds should be handled under applicable law and the valid agreement. This sample does not authorize lockout, utility disconnection, or other self-help measures.

10. Move-out and deposit settlement

At move-out, the Tenant should remove personal belongings, return keys, provide final utility readings or bills, and leave the premises in a reasonably clean condition, allowing for ordinary wear and tear.

The parties should compare the move-in inventory with the move-out condition. Any deductions should be itemized and supported by photographs, invoices, or other records where available. Disputed amounts should be addressed through lawful dispute-resolution channels.

11. Disputes and written changes

The parties should first try to resolve misunderstandings through written communication and a record of the relevant clause and supporting documents. Any agreed amendment should be written, dated, and signed by the parties.

Any governing-law, jurisdiction, registration, stamp-duty, or notarization requirements must be determined for the real transaction with qualified local advice. This fictional sample does not provide a legal opinion.
