PROPERTY DETAILS REPORT — PROPERTY B

Fictional example: Lakeview Heights, Unit B-703 | Hyderabad, Telangana

1. Property overview

This document describes a fictional apartment for use in a document intelligence project. It is a sample dataset and does not represent a real listing, verified owner, measured floor plan, or title record.

Property reference: PROP-B-703. Property type: 3-bedroom apartment. Building: Lakeview Heights. Unit: B-703, seventh floor. Illustrative location: a residential area in Hyderabad, Telangana.

The sample records a carpet area of 1,260 square feet, built-up area of 1,500 square feet, and approximate super built-up area of 1,680 square feet. These figures are illustrative only and must be verified from reliable plans and records before any real transaction.

2. Layout and room information

The fictional unit contains three bedrooms, two bathrooms, a living and dining area, kitchen, utility space, and balcony. It may suit a larger household or a household needing a dedicated home office.

- Living and dining area: approximately 300 sq. ft., illustrative.
- Main bedroom: approximately 160 sq. ft., with attached bathroom.
- Bedroom two: approximately 125 sq. ft.
- Bedroom three: approximately 115 sq. ft., potentially usable as a study.
- Kitchen and utility: approximately 120 sq. ft. combined.
- Bathrooms: two, with standard illustrative fittings.

3. Building amenities and common areas

The fictional building is described as a mid-to-high-rise apartment complex with lifts, staircases, lobby, security desk, shared water storage, common lighting, and a residents' association.

Illustrative facilities include one allocated car parking space, a small gym room, a multipurpose room, landscaped common areas, and visitor parking subject to availability. These are sample descriptions and should not be treated as confirmed amenities.

Residents should obtain the current association rules and confirm charges, booking procedures, opening hours, maintenance plans, and restrictions on guests or use of shared facilities.

Important notice: All names, measurements, amenities, and location descriptions in this document are fictional and created only for software testing. Verify real property facts and obtain professional advice where required.

4. Utilities and physical condition

The example assumes electricity, building water storage, drainage, and availability of third-party internet services. Actual supply, backup systems, metering, and billing must be checked directly.

The fictional interior is described as having tiled floors, painted walls, standard windows, kitchen cabinets, and ordinary bathroom fixtures. The report is not based on a physical visit and does not certify workmanship or structural condition.

Before move-in, test plumbing, electrical fixtures, locks, ventilation, windows, water pressure, and appliances. Photograph existing defects and agree in writing which fixtures and appliances are included.

5. Access and neighborhood considerations

The sample describes a mixed residential neighborhood with access to daily shopping, healthcare services, and public transport options. It does not make verified claims about specific nearby places, journey times, or traffic conditions.

A prospective resident should check commute times during peak hours, parking access, noise, street lighting, drainage, waterlogging history, public transport availability, and the location's suitability for household needs.

6. Ownership and approval documents to request

Relevant documents for a real transaction may include title or conveyance records, the registered sale deed where applicable, encumbrance certificate, approved building plan, occupancy or completion certificate where applicable, property-tax receipts, association records, and utility bills.

Confirm that the unit number, floor, area, owner identity, parking allocation, and any restrictions match across documents. Ask a qualified local property lawyer to review legal or title concerns.

Important notice: All names, measurements, amenities, and location descriptions in this document are fictional and created only for software testing. Verify real property facts and obtain professional advice where required.

7. Illustrative key facts

Property ID: PROP-B-703
Configuration: 3 BHK
Carpet area: 1,260 sq. ft. (illustrative)
Built-up area: 1,500 sq. ft. (illustrative)
Super built-up area: 1,680 sq. ft. (illustrative)
Floor: Seventh floor
Parking: One illustrative allocated car space
Occupancy status: Not specified in this sample

8. Questions for document intelligence

Potential questions include: What is the carpet area? How many bedrooms are listed? Which amenities are described? Is parking included? What records should be verified? Are there conflicting area figures between the details report and agreement?

The application should show source citations, ideally with filename and page number. If a fact is missing, it should respond that the document does not specify the information rather than inventing an answer.

9. Record management and limitations

Assign the property ID PROP-B-703 to this document and related files. During ingestion, store metadata for property, document type, page number, and source file. This makes it easier to compare records without mixing Property A and Property B.

These fictional facts can be used to test retrieval, summaries, and cross-document comparison. They should remain clearly labelled as synthetic data in demonstrations, screenshots, and reports.

Important notice: All names, measurements, amenities, and location descriptions in this document are fictional and created only for software testing. Verify real property facts and obtain professional advice where required.
